

Alvaro M. García at FILibro Canada 2024

The sixth edition of Canada's largest Spanish-language book fair includes a lecture by Alvaro M. García entitled "Living the Fourth Industrial Revolution: How Artificial Intelligence Impacts Publishing and Education."

The Ibero-American Book Fair in Canada (FILibro Canada) is a dedicated space for promoting reading, literature, and the sale of books by authors from Latin America and the Iberian Peninsula. This event also fosters relationships within the book industry.

This fair is significant for writers, publishers, distributors, booksellers, translators, and illustrators who want to share their work nationwide. The audience, eager for books in Spanish and other languages spoken in these countries, will have the chance to discover works by Ibero-American authors.

FILibro Canada is the first book fair in the country that welcomes everyone who wants to participate. It is fully inclusive, featuring literary events and book sales managed directly by publishers and authors. Its mission is to promote literature in Canada by encouraging the reading of quality books, hosting book presentations, organizing roundtable discussions, and offering poetry and prose readings, along with various literary activities that invite public participation.
