At fourteen, he started performing at the flamenco club Juan Antonio Córdoba in Almagro, quickly becoming the official guitarist and accompanying all the singers who visited the club. Soon after, the flamenco peña La Sonanta in Ciudad Real also appointed him as their official guitarist.

During these years, while accompanying prominent flamenco artists from his region, he discovered that he enjoyed singing even more than playing. Encouraged by family and friends, he began his singing career, performing at various festivals organized by the flamenco club La Sonanta in Ciudad Real.
